

Hello...

Words cannot express our gratitude to you for considering us as part of your life journey! We can only imagine the emotions you've felt while considering adoption. As hopeful parents, we promise to nurture your child, while allowing them the independence to grow into the unique person they are meant to be, sprinkling in beach days and popsicles, music and dancing, and most importantly, love and laughter. Your incredible gift will be the center of our world!

We want to assure you we will always be open and honest about the sacrifice you made for your child and that this sacrifice came out of love and the desire for your child to have the best possible future! We promise to respect you and the level of openness you seek and will provide lots of photos and updates, as to include you in this journey with us!

A little about us...

We have been married for nine years. We've made amazing memories, but have also been through many challenging times, with infertility being the hardest. But, with that said, each situation has only made us stronger as a couple and made us who we are today!

We constantly make each other laugh and enjoy spending time together. Whether we are traveling the world, spending the afternoon at the beach, or heading out to the movies, we love each other's company. We can honestly say we are best friends and have so much love for each other. We are very blessed and feel the one thing missing is the joy only a child can bring!
